Frontiers Award

The Frontiers category, sponsored by ANU, showcases Australia's potential to extend beyond existing knowledge and boundaries to transformative practical application. Australia is already a global leader in health and medical research excellence, the challenge is to leverage this advantage through bold leadership and game changing innovation.

This category recognises transformative research by an individual, team or corporate that could revolutionise health outcomes within Australia and potentially internationally.

A frontier outcome could be, but is not limited to, applying emerging capabilities in areas such as machine learning, artificial intelligence or robotics; understanding how humans' function in extreme environments; reducing healthcare costs without compromising patient outcomes; or ground-breaking transformative medicine.
